

Governor's Weekly Message: Preparing Our Workforce for Jobs of the Future

In his weekly message, Governor Markell highlights statewide efforts to ensure Delaware's workforce is trained and qualified for the ever-changing job market.

"The skill demands of today's jobs are rapidly evolving and the days of one employer, one career are over for most workers," said Governor Markell. "Lifetime learning is no longer an aspiration – it's a necessity, because workers throughout their careers need to upgrade their skills to remain competitive. That also means we need a workforce system that delivers the training workers need to qualify for the jobs employers are seeking to fill."

Every Friday, the Governor's office releases a new Weekly Message in video, audio, and transcript form. The message is available on:
