Wilmington, DE – In his weekly message, Governor Markell recognizes the Delawareans who have devoted their career to public service, and talks about the positive impact of their work in building safe and strong communities and a responsive government that meets peoples' needs.

"This time each year we recognize the contributions of teachers, law enforcement officers, and the many Delawareans who devote their career to public service," Governor Markell said. "These individuals are often unsung heroes – doing the work that keeps our state running. Reflecting on the sacrifice and recognizing the accomplishments of our public servants reminds us of their contributions to ensure that our government is responsive to peoples' needs and that it acts in big and small ways to improve the quality of life. Their hard work keeps Delaware moving forward."

Every week, the Governor's office releases a new Weekly Message in video, audio, and transcript form. The message is available on:
