Wilmington, DE – In his weekly message, Governor Markell highlights the state's efforts to ensure that every Delawarean has the opportunity to graduate from high school. That commitment extends to adults without a high school diploma who recognize the importance of education in opening pathways to good jobs and career success in today's economy.

"In our rapidly changing economy, there has never been a better time to enter the workforce with the right skills, but there's never been a more challenging time to be without the key skills or the right education," Governor Markell said. "By providing quality education opportunities for all our people from our youngest learners, through high school, and beyond we're expanding our workforce and helping them seize the opportunities of the future, and that will keep Delaware moving forward."

Every week, the Governor's office releases a new Weekly Message in video, audio, and transcript form. The message is available on:
